Live and Blook All, total can a Compart sten their very Mee, that has

REVIEW

OFTHE

STATE

OFTHE

ENGLISH NATION.

vig in ... Churchay, February 21. 1706.

give a Tradefman, which our last ended with, vir. TO BRBAK; but I cannot forbear telling you, Gentlemen, it is upon the Maturest Consideration in the World, that I bring it up to this height, and lay it down as a Fundamental Maxim in the present State of Trade; the only Destruction of Trade in this Nation, is not the Breaking of our Tradesmen, but their not Breaking, viz. That when Men find in Trade, they cannot fland, but are Declining in Stock, the Capital sunk, their Credit sinking, and the Bottom Nought, yet they will struggle to the last Moment, and like the Drowning Man, that Tyr'd with Swimming, and quite speak, when he can hold up his Head no longer above Water, yet he swims even under Water, while he is, as it were, firang-ling, and in his last Pangs; they will run through all the Extrematies, till at last Desperation seizes them, and then like a Hunted Stag, they hand at Bay with their Creditors, and do them all the Misshief they can; the Stag indeed, like a Generous Beast, when he finds the Speed fail, and the Merciles Hounds at his Heels, Bravely Faces them, and Dyes Resisting; but its plain, that Courage is the last Effort of Fear; and would he Exert that Bravery, hefore he had spent his Strength in a Cowardly slight; there would be no such thing as Hunting him, the Dogs would be useless; Pardon, the Allusion, Gentlemen. Would Men in Trade, Treat with their Creditors early, the Hounds, the Commissioners I would say, would be useless, Statutes would Dye of Course; this Bar. barous and Bloody Att, for I can call it no other, of Immuring Men Alive, Starving Innocent People, and Torturing Families, would, to the Eternal Scandal of the Contrivers, be Damn'd, as it deserves, as a Practice not heard of, in any Nation in the World.

I cannot but fay, I believe the Contrivers of that Law, aim'd at Exposing this Nation to the World: That we being formerly a People Famous for Generolity and Mercy, to the Miserable; that Abominated Cruelty, even to the worft Malefattors; that Upbraid the Scots with their Boot and Ibumkins, and the Dutch, with the Cruelties of Amboyna, should shelter the B.oodient Defigo, that ever Christian Nation Harbour'd under the Cover of a Law, for Regulating Prisons, and the passing this Law, without regard to the Destruction of fo many Thousand Miserable Families, as must first and last Perish by it, is to me a farther Testimony, how little those People are Bachn'd to Compassion, who had then the Conduct of Publick Affairs.

There are some Acts of Parliament in England, with what Defign made, I am not to Examine, which carry in them something so odd, that it shocks Mankind in the Execution; 'tis hard we should have any Laws in such a Nation as this, that pretends to so much fuftice, that it should be Scandalous for any Man to make use of; and yet perhaps, I could give a great many Instances of this kind, and particularly, that we Call, the Statute of Limitations; how many Men are there in Town, who, if a Man takes the Advantage of that Statute, and Pleads it to a just Debt, freely call him a Rogue, a Villain, that deferves to be Insulted in the Streets, and Can'd for a Rafcal; and yet this Law is made Sacred, by King, Lords, and Commons, in the feveral Acts, for Discovery of Frauds, in all Penal Laws, whether Pecuniary or Sanguinary; how Scandalous is the Title of an Informer, no Honest Man can bear it. And when fir the Reward, some stoop to the Man Employment, how do Gentlemen Contemn their Persons, Despise their Acquaintance, and care not to be feen in their Company, even those very Men, that have in a manner, say'd the Nation, by Discoveries of Plots, Affassinations, and Conspiracies, against our Government and Kings? how do even those People, who acknowledge the Service done, yet flight the Person, and think them Men of Balenes, and Difhonour that when they have their Reward, are fit to be laid affide

With Bond

In the Case of the Law, I am Discourfing of, it already begins to be Counted, the Test of a Man of Blood, and Barbarity; to put it in Execution, Entitles a Man to the Character of Inhumane, and in a few Years, it will of Course grow so Universally Condemn'd, that no Men of Honesty or Humanity will be feen to make nie of it.

To talk of Humanity and Mercy, and Confine Men to Perpetual Imprisonment for Debt, and that Men who cannot pay too, as well as they that can, Men Ruin'd by known Difafter, as well as Men of Fraud ; to put Men to Torture and Famine, and neither let them Work to Pay, nor to bive; to fmother Men in Noylome Dungeons, and Crowd them with Mortherers and Thieves; to Condemn them to the Temporal Hell of a Gaol, and barr them up from all the helps of Art, Industry, and Time to Reflore their Families, and pay : For Shame, let us no more Reproach the Dutch, Amboyna is a Fool to this; and though I thank God, I neither fear nor value all the Efforts of my Numerous Enemies this way, yet I would be of Mr. Tutebing's Mind in another Cafe, and annot but Applaud his Experiment; Isthould Petition the Parliament to make it Sclony, and that they would Remedy this Barbarous Milchief, by the Coup de Grace, of the Gallows; but I shall take more Freedom with this Matter hereafter.

I am now Addresting my felf to the Tradef men that yet fland upon their Feet, and tho' firuggling with Difficulties in Trade, yet appear good Men 5 God knows how many thousand Families I am now talking to, that Live well, Ride in Coaches, and Enjoy the outlide of Happinels, and no Man can fay to them, thou are the Man, Gentlemen, no longer ab water ver us a series and indicate a version in

Gentlemen, if you will ever hearken to kind, when a Man discovers his Condition Advice for your Good, let it be to this, frop in time, and be not Difmay'd at Confequences; let Laws and Cruelties of Creditors be what they will, flop in time, 'tis far eafier to make up; and you will make much better Terms, when you can Pay 15 s in the Pound, that 25. 6d. Creditors are never Un-

early, flows them the Honest Man, and their lofs is bur fmall, If you would not be quite undone, venture to be undone, early; Time will recover you, Good Ulage will Cure you, but Running all to the last Ex-tremity, Ruines both Debtor and Credi-San in the to the state of MISCELLANEA.

N my laft, I shew'd the Necessity I was under, from the Violence of other Men's Malice, to justifie the Moderation of this

I do believe no Man, ought to fludy other Mens Infirmities, and to Expole all Mens Errors, is an Office no Man can defire, for the take of it; I think the true end of Satyr, is fer Reformation, and I freely Renounce all manner of Invidious Reproachings. I have conceal'd a Thousand times more Follies, Crimes, Vices, and Ridiculous Actions, of even my work Enemies, than I have Expos A, and in this, I value my felt upon my Moderation, that I Expole none, but what I think Incorrigible, and who first really Expose themselves, feem paft Shame, Advice or Corredion; and with thefe I think my felf not ty'd up to Rules.

Now, tho' I refolve never to make any Truce with Vice, or with the Men of Vice, vet while I have been. Inviting all Men to Party-Peace, and to promote the Publick Tranquility; I have, to prompt the Exhortation, by my own Example, Reftrain's my Pen, in giving the Scandalous Histories of those People, whose Practice has been Notorious, in the Oppoling the Good of their Native Country.

And first, as to History's of Fall, I have Suppress'd the History of above 27 feveral Elections in England, in which the Horrible Scenes of High Church Rage, would have been fo Manifest, the particulars would have been fo Scandalous, not to the Perfon's con cern'd only, but to the whole Party, that they who have but the least Inclination to Peace, and Silence, cannot but Confess me-

Civil to them.

Secondly, as to Inflances of the Inferiour Clergy and Magistrates, in the feveral Parts of England, and of their Prodigion's Behaviour, of which I have Collected about fix and twenty Hundred Examples, in which their Conduct, would fuffer Indelible Scandal & I base Suppres'd the Opportunities. I have had of Expoling them: have not only ferborn the Publication, but have never fo much as shown the Diline! Particulars in Conversation of In thopes Argument for Peace, Experience, or fome turn of Affairs might open their Eyes, and Reproach should not lye in the way of their

Repentance. ... will you stone I sads this, I am Oblig'd to break increpen this Machod, and must Exposed formebody to give them a Spreimen, how eafe it is to Expose the reft sout fince it must be so, I leave the World to judge of the Moderation I speak of in my bitherso forhearing, to relate the following Secre Light, and et large det lied. ry.

From Okehampson in Davenftires be One Owbree, a Labouring and very Honeft, Ulcful Man, was Servant to a certain Endefman in the Town, y ha had a Right in the Burrough to Vote for Burgestes at the last Election: This Tradelman being known nor